

Building Meat Supply Chain Capacity in the West

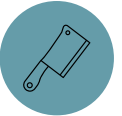

The Northwest and Rocky Mountain Regional Food Business Center (RFBC) Meat Team is dedicated to increasing supply chain capacity of regional meat and poultry to produce, aggregate, process, market and distribute products in Western markets.

Our work will bolster ongoing efforts to support more diversified and resilient meat and poultry supply chains, with a focus on underserved farmers, ranchers, and food businesses.

The NW & RM RFBC Meat Team is committed to serving our stakeholders by providing:

- Resources and consulting to support resilient and strong supply chain participants like meat processors, livestock producers, meat buyers, and distributors
- Business planning, mentorship, training and connections to grow supply and demand to and from new and existing markets
- Support and resources to aid supply chain participants in increasing the market value of regional meat and poultry products and ensuring access to culturally relevant foods

Who We Serve

The NW & RM RFBC Meat Team is dedicated to serving:

- Small- to mid-scale meat and poultry processors and distributors
- Livestock and poultry producers operating a meat business, interested in starting a meat business or raising animals for a local or regional meat brand
- Support organizations (Extension, non-profits, government agencies, etc.)
- Underserved stakeholders (rural communities, farmers with disabilities, new entry and urban farmers, BIPOC communities, Tribal Nations, veterans, regions of persistent poverty)

Connect with Us

To learn more about the NW & RM RFBC Meat Team and opportunities to grow your food or farm business, please scan the QR code:

*This institution is an equal opportunity provider.
<https://www.usda.gov/non-discrimination-statement>